MAPS GROUP CONTRIBUTES TO THE IMPLEMENTATION OF A REGIONAL PANDEMIC PLAN THROUGH DATA INTEGRATION

The one-year engagement, worth approximately €645,000, involves integrating health, environmental and veterinary data to support epidemiological surveillance and pandemic risk assessment

Parma, 13 october 2026,

Maps S.p.A. (MAPS; IT0005364333), a company listed on Euronext Growth Milan and active in digital transformation, announces its involvement, through Group company IASI, in developing integrations between information systems to support a Regional Pandemic Plan. The engagement provides for total consideration of approximately €645,000, with the related revenue to be recognised across the 2026 financial year and the first half of 2027.

The work aims to make data from health, environmental and veterinary sources available in an integrated, structured and consistent format, strengthening the information base required for epidemiological surveillance, the early identification of potential threats, and the assessment of the risk of spread and pandemic impact.

Activities will include developing interoperability interfaces and processes for validating, standardising and managing data flows, with a focus on data quality, security and traceability. The aim is to ensure timely access to information and reduce manual tasks, providing the regional system with reliable data to support analysis and decision-making.

Marco Ciscato, Executive Chairman of Maps Group, commented: “The ability to connect information from different sources is essential to strengthening healthcare systems’ preparedness for potential emergencies. We are applying our expertise in interoperability and data management to epidemiological surveillance, helping to build a more comprehensive and timely information base for decision-making. This commitment draws on our understanding of healthcare processes and reaffirms the Group’s role in the digital transformation of public healthcare.”
